Destination of Mr. Rice.
It is understood, and we are authorized to say, that the Hon. John H. Rice is a candidate for re-election to Congress from this district.

The State Pension Law.
The intention of the Legislature in passing the State Pension Act are undoubtedly set forth with correctness in the following communication. It is judged impossible for the State, with any degree of safety to its finances, to extend aid by way of pension to soldiers and their families, except in those cases where the aid is indispensably necessary. No general pension act for revolutionaries was passed until many years after the termination of that war, nor until the numbers of those surviving soldiers had been very greatly diminished. None has yet been passed for the soldiers of 1812. The country would be most glad to extend their pecuniary bounties and permanent pensions to every man who bravely and nobly fought for its liberty, its very existence, in the war against rebellion—but the soldiers themselves must see that this is manifestly impossible. The present pension law was intended, as we have said above, only for those disabled soldiers and their families who are unable to live by their own labor without it. The terms and forms of the regulations for applications made by the Governor and Council may be unnecessarily stringent and humiliating, to the just pride of the soldier—but if they can and do doubt will be properly modified. We do not see why the certificates of municipal or other town authorities that the applicants are in their opinion "unable (in the language of the law) to obtain a livelihood by their own labor and the aid of their families" may not be sufficient. It is true there may be some cases of impostors, in the absence of more particular details—but not many. Denunciation of the Governor and Council is quite unnecessary, however, in this matter. They have done what they deemed to be necessary to their duty, and with no intention of casting slur upon any soldier for his poverty.

Augusta, Me. June 1.
Messrs. Wheeler & Lynde:

It may not be improper to present a different view of the State Pension Law from that which appeared in your columns yesterday, and your readers can judge whether the Governor and Council have so totally misapprehended the true intent and meaning of the Act as is asserted. The classes of disabled soldiers, seamen, widows of such, and orphans under 22 years of age, who are constituted by the State Pension Law the beneficiaries under said Act are designated as those "who by the pension received from the United States with their own labor and resources are unable to obtain a livelihood for themselves and their dependents on them" and the law imposes upon the Governor and Council the duty of deciding upon the character and amount of proof necessary in each case to bring the applicant within the provisions of the Act. There can be no question whatever in a legal point of view that each and every applicant in order to be entitled to the pension must in addition to all other requirements be dependent more or less upon public or private charity for support. How is this indispensable fact to be ascertained? The admission of the certificate of two selectmen as proof that John Smith a disabled soldier is dependent upon public or private charity for his support, without such document showing minutely and in detail the facts which in their opinion render him thus dependent, would in effect constitute the Selectmen the sole judges of the one great fact in issue and leaves nothing whatever to the discretion of the Governor and Council. The checks and guards provided by the latter to prevent the payment of pensions under this Act to others than claimants of the character specified in the Law are only such as in their opinion may preserve the State from bankruptcy and enable it to meet meritorious applicants now and in future years. The claim amounting to $1,600 (the interest of that sum yielding $8 per month), and the number of claimants being in all probability not less than five thousand, an indebtedness of some eight million of dollars may be apprehended to carry out the provisions and intentions of an Act for which the Legislature failed to provide a single dollar. The war of the Revolution closed 33 years ago, and yet pensions continue to be paid on account of services rendered thereunder. Fifty-two years ago the second war for our independence closed, and yet hundreds of thousands of dollars are yearly disbursed as Pensions for disabilities incurred in that war. This State Pension Law will undoubtedly be a permanent one, and the enrollment of others than orphans upon the list, will, in most instances, be for life. Of more than sixteen millions of dollars paid during the war for State aid to soldiers' families and for State and town bounties, not less than ten millions of it remains as a debt upon the State and its municipalities. In view of these facts, it certainly behooves our Executive to adopt all requisite measures for guarding the Public Treasury against liabilities not contemplated by the Legislature. The Governor and Council will undoubtedly be happy to revise their judgment respecting the intentions of our General Court as embodied in this Bill if there is any occasion therefor, especially as they have announced that new blanks and instructions will be issued if necessary.

Yours respectfully,

Correspondence of the Daily Whig.

To the Editor of the Daily Whig.

The Legislature failed in its action yesterday, and to the disappointment of many here as well as in Maine, they killed the bill to loan the credit of the State to the European and North American Railway Company in aid of their road. It had passed to a third reading in the House by so large a vote that its friends felt safe in their confidence of its final passage. But your people need not feel that all chance of aid from Massachusetts were gone. The action on this bill was at the behest of the session, and necessarily hurried. If the road is commenced before next winter, and further aid shall be necessary to carry it through, I believe the good sense of Massachusetts business men will prevail in securing that aid.

This week again the city is full of people attending the anniversaries proper. The Congregationalists, Unitarians and Universalists, are all holding their yearly religious festivals—as the Baptists did last week, and the New England Methodists are to do next week. There can be nothing more pleasant than these gatherings and reunions, at this most beautiful season of the year; and their object upon the interests of the revival Churches, and the general cause of morality and religion is of great value. I have only seen from the "Queen City of the East," of the Clergy, the venerable Dr. Pond. It does one good to shake his kindly hand, and hear his voice, which he so long and so effectively bore down on the banks of the Penobscot.

Maine men stand well everywhere—you find them almost everywhere. It was no less than a poem expressed by Saxo a few years ago in a poem delivered at a College Commencement in your State, that a voyage of discovery would now be of little use to any of the governments of the Old World, as they would be likely to find as they approached some hitherto unknown shore.

"A Bangor schooner anchored in the Bay."

You will find enterprising men from Maine in almost every important city, east and west and south. In a rapid journey to Memphis last winter, I felt at home in all the large cities with familiar faces from Bangor; at Buffalo and Chicago and St. Louis and Dubuque.

"Butte field's Overland Express," from St. Louis to Pike's Peak, across the plains, an enterprise which has become an enterprise in usefulness, and has brought wealth and reputation to its originator, was started by and takes its name from a Bangor boy, who a few years ago played in your streets, and got his education in your excellent schools—while a leading lawyer at the St. Louis Bar, Daniel T. Jewett, Esq., will be remembered as one of your citizens not many years ago.

The weather is beautiful, and nature in this grand month of June, in this vicinity, wears her loveliest garb, and everybody seems to enjoy it. Business is good notwithstanding the panic over the water, and U. S. 7-30's sell for 24 percent premium which is remarkable with gold at its present figure and our securities returning from abroad.

Young, &c., A. H. B.

The Boston Advertiser's special says that the main points taken by Senator Doolittle against the proposed third section, disabling Federal and State office-holders who have broken their oath to support the Constitution, from holding office in future, were:

That no distinction was made between voluntary and involuntary rebels; that the disability would extend to rebels included within the executive amnesty; and to those pardoned by the President; that the Federal Government has no right to prescribe the qualifications of State officers, and that this and the other portions of the amendments should be submitted to the people separately, as distinct propositions, so that each could be adopted or rejected upon its individual merits. All the opposition speakers stigmatized the disabling sections, vindictive, to which it was replied by Senators Grimes and Wiley that it was intended less as a punishment for past offenses than as a precaution against their recurrence in future, as a measure of security for the public peace. Votes were taken upon two amendments offered by Mr. Doolittle. That confining the disability to hold office to those who voluntarily engaged in insurrection received ten votes to thirty. That "excepting those who have duly received or shall receive pardon and amnesty," was rejected, nine to thirty-two. The third section formed in republican caucus was adopted by thirty-two yeas to twenty. On all these questions Senator Wiley voted with the majority, and Senators Cowan, Doolittle and Norton with the minority.

The St. Louis Republican says:—"On Thursday last, a lady, wearing a red opera cloak, was passing along the street in Quincy, where some cattle were being driven."

One of them, attracted by the color of the cloak, dashed forward, and planting a horn under each one of the lady's arms, ginked her fast to a fence pole by. Singularly enough, she was released from her perilous and embarrassing position without injury."

Secretary Harlan's letter to the serenaders reminds The Detroit Post of two boys who once found a woodchuck, without knowing the animal was at home. After digging away without achieving any result, one of the lads thrust his arm down the hole, when the woodchuck seized the finger and bit it to the bone, eliciting a yell that would have done honor to an Indian warrior. "What's the matter, Joe?" returned Joe. "Thunder and lightning!" returned Joe, flourishing his mutilated member vigorously. "He's there!"

Major Mann, U. S. Paymaster, arrived here, Wednesday evening, from New Orleans, via Washington. He has been at New Orleans for thirteen months past, on duty. The war being over, and the troops paid off, Major Mann has been relieved from the duties of the office, which he has so faithfully and satisfactorily fulfilled.

When Major Mann left New York for New Orleans last year, he had in his possession eight millions of dollars, wherewith to pay the Major and his family, and who was going to leave New York on the 7th of April, with this amount in his possession, and arrangements were made to immediately make to get the money in order, to meet the Major and his family, and to capture the latter. But the fact that he was going to leave New York for that purpose, and when he ran the gauntlet down by the fleet, conveyed the money, Florida, which was sold by G. B. & Co. to the Government, and was a success of the love, and the ram did not attempt to touch her, but kept on and took fire about twenty-five miles below the city, and was run ashore and destroyed. She was captured by Captain Reed, who stole and burned the latter Calcutta Cushing. The plan was admirably arranged but it was unsuccessful.—[Press.]

NEW YORK, June 3.

The Herald contains the following account by an eye-witness of the engagement near Kegonsaw:

The Fenians were 1000 strong, under O'Neill, and had reached a small village about 10 miles from Buffalo, on the morning of the 29th. On the 30th, when O'Neill's scouts announced the approach of a large force of Canadians, The Fenians at once tore down the fence and formed a line of battle in an adjoining field. The volunteers advanced upon the Fenians and the action commenced—the skirmishers on either side exchanging a brisk fire. An order was given for the Fenian skirmishers to fall back. These men, however, did not fire once, but lay motionless; when the Fenians advanced on the double quick, with fixed bayonets; and, but, the volunteers were arranged in an echelon, on the other side of a swamp, and separated by a line of trees, and when the Fenians O'Neill demanded a charge useless, and gave the order to halt and fall back. The volunteers, believing this to be a retreat, advanced upon the Fenians, and were met by a volley from the Fenians, with a counter charge, and instantly set to rout, the Fenians pursuing them for two miles, when O'Neill ordered a halt. The volunteers, completely demoralized, fled in confusion, leaving O'Neill's Colborne. The loss on the Fenian side was about five killed and wounded in all. The Fenians fought bravely, throwing off their arms and bayonets, and firing with great effect. The Fenians were "a portion of the volunteers on reaching Fort Erie took refuge on a steam tug, but shortly returned to the shore, remaining in the neighborhood of the Fenians, and on the 30th, when the Fenians were seen crossing the brow of a hill, when the volunteers valiantly rushed out to capture them, but, just as they reached the top of the hill, the Fenians turned and charged down upon them. The volunteers broke and scattered through the woods. Some of them again got on board the tug, and others were running along the shore, all in confusion. The Fenians were seen to throw the beach was covered with guns and knapsacks thrown away, and their flight resembled the first Bull Run battle-field. Some 70 men were captured by the Fenians.

DETROIT, June 3.

Some 3,000 Fenians left this city last night on a tug, and crossed in a steam tug. Their destination is unknown. A demonstration is undeniably intended.

Buffalo, June 3—4 p. m.

U. S. steamer Michigan arrived at Niagara River, about 4 miles below the city. A large fleet of boats are fastened to her under her guns, having on board about 400 men—not 700, as reported at first. The Fenians are reported to have 3,300 men. The commander, Capt. Bishop of the Michigan is anxiously awaiting instructions as to what shall be done with the prisoners. Districts of the Fenians are awaiting instructions from Washington. It is reported that the Fenians are anxious to bring them into the city, as an effort might be made by friends to release them.

The Fenians are in a very excited state, the city, but the general feeling is, the government has done its duty, and our people are glad the Fenians have fallen into American hands rather than British.

The Fenians are reported to have 3,300 men, and to have taken 1500 to leave last night in tugs and flatboats, probably to reinforce the Fenians at Buffalo. The arrangements made by General Barry in organizing picket boats, their work on the river, and the Fenians, were of great importance.

There is a report, but it lacks confirmation, that a force of Fenians had landed at Point Albion, 20 miles above here, on Lake Erie. A special despatch to the Herald from Copenhagen, says:
"The Danish armistice signed at the day here by Deputy U. S. Marshall this morning consigned by express to a party at Malmo."

New York, June 3.
Steamship Hermann, from Southampton 23d, and Marathon, from Liverpool 22d at Queenstown 23d ult., have arrived at the port.

The London Post of the 22d, publishes Paris telegraph stating that it is definitely arranged that the representatives of France, England and Russia, on one side, and Austria, Germany and Italy on the other, will assemble at the Foreign Ministry office, Paris, under the presidency of M. Drouot de L'Huy, for formally opening the Conference to solve pacifically the pending question between Austria, Prussia and Italy.

It was reported at Paris that Lord Cowley, British Ambassador at Paris, would shortly proceed to Vienna.

The London Herald says, "neither a Congress or conference can do any more than adjourn the war, unless one or other of the combatants become exhausted under the burden of its preparations."

The official Decreeing Journal of the 21st says a Congress has been agreed to by all parties, and it would meet on the 25th.

According to some authorities, Austria avoided a disinclination to join a conference, and it was asserted that if she persisted, said would represented pro tem. by England, and Russia. There was, however, no indications of relaxation in their military preparations.

"The moral power," the country's daily press feeling was that a peaceful solution was hopeless.

Prussia has issued a decree that in event of an enemy ship belonging to the United States, need not be liable to capture, although she may be used as a base for operations against the high seas by her crew.

This measure is only to apply in case of reciprocity from the enemy.

The official dispatch states that the alliance between Prussia and Italy binds each to support the other in case of an attack by England. The treaty to continue until the end of the present year.

OUR CITY. Building and Improving houses and stores is quite brisk in our city this season—more so than for several years past. Many new dwelling-houses have been finished, and are going up, of all classes, many of them elegant and costly structures and such as will be an ornament and a credit to the city. Among the "reconstructed" residences, or those undergoing the process here our Southern brethren, the fine mansions on State street built by our first Mayor, Mr. Gilman, fifty years ago, owned of late years by Mr. Leonard Jones, and recently purchased by Mr. Michael Schwartz, will present a prominent appearance. It is being remodelled throughout, and with a modern French roof surmounted by a fine observatory, will be one of the most elegant residences in the State. From its commanding position the splendid scenery of the surrounding country for thirty or forty miles, and some directions much further, may be seen from the observatory. The view therefore is one of the finest in the State.

FIRE. About five o'clock Saturday evening, fire was discovered in the old Rectory stable on French street, owned by Abraham Woodward, Esq., of the Penobscot Exchange. Almost simultaneously with the alarm, flames burst through the roof, and although the Department were exceedingly prompt was with the utmost difficulty that the flames could be subdued, after burning the stable and shed, a house adjoining owned by Mr. Woodward and occupied by Mrs. Wilbur and a double tenement store and dwelling house occupied by T. Wall and James M. Iott. It required strenuous exertions to keep the Exchange stables and other adjacent buildings from being destroyed. Mr. Watson lost several single sleighs and one of the best sleighs. His loss will probably amount to $1600. The other losses will not probably exceed a like amount.

— Hancock street is to be widened on a plan opposite the Penobscot Exchange, and from Exchange street to French street. A public square is also proposed on the west side of French street, extending from Hancock to Washington streets—the old buildings being cleared away, and leaving but a single row of stores, fronting both on the proposed square and on Exchange street. The improvement will be a desirable and important one, and will be of great advantage to the city. The Exchange Hotel will greatly benefit thereby.

PENOBSCOT RIVER EXPRESS. We have omitted to state that the office of the Penobscot River Express, whose Bangor agent is the well-known and popular expressman, Mr. Crane, was, some time since, removed to No. 6, Main street, which has been fitted up and furnished in a very handsome and convenient style for the business, with competent and attentive clerks, and messengers. The Express communicates daily by steamers Katahdin, Regulator and Long, with all the towns touched at on Penobscot bay, and with Portland and Boston.

RAILROAD CHANGE. The freight accommodation train on the Maine Central will leave Bangor until further notice at 2.15 P. M. instead of 1.30 as heretofore.

—Rev. Mr. Walton of Portland has concluded to remain with the Third Park Church in Portland another year, on condition that he shall not be obliged to promote there nor elsewhere on the Sabbath.

—The bark Hosier, Rich, which left Bangor on Saturday last, in tow of the steamer Tabor, arrived at Machiasport on Tuesday for freight. It is bound at Machias, drawing 1000 tons of goods, to come up, and will probably load at the bridge, about the 10th inst. below. — [Machias Republican] —The number of foreign immigrants arrived at New York was 10,498, comprising Germans and Irish. It is said 150,000 immigrants to the United States have changed passage at Hamburg.

—The little tax of one cent upon every box of matches, netted the government $2,500,000 last year. According to that estimate, 150,000,000 bunches or boxes of matches must have been used in this country during the year, or five bunches—equal to one hundred matches—for every man, woman and child.

—Col. Wm. H. Hoyt of Haverhill, drawing off his boots placed the toe of one of them under the gun, 3-in. flag, and in attempting to get the boot off, his right leg was broken just above the knee.
